In the morning, we classified the cards with the international organization's work written on it. There were some efforts in the project and we classified them into four levels. Sometimes groups did not lead to consensus on the discussion. The participants tried to form their thoughts by listening to individual opinion.

In the afternoon, we reflected on the group works and gave presentations. There were many comments which the participants could realize in the activity's level of the project. We learned that cooperation between several levels was necessary to make the project forward. Tomorrow, we will think about each countries' policy by using the method which we learned in these workshops.
